Programs Mission

Collaboration among countries in the Greater Mekong Subregion and ASEAN community has strengthened regional development in diverse areas and leading to abundant mutual projects.

A good command of English, an understanding and awareness of cultures combined with knowledge of current global issues, are key elements that facilitate communication and collaboration.

The ultimate goal of English for professional development Program is to produce scholars with advanced knowledge and skills in English for international communication, a research mind and strong leadership. We also look forward to creating prospective graduates who are not only well-rounded in current global situations but also able to make adjustments in response to changes. These valuable human resources attributes are needed to propel their local communities, countries, and the regions for optimal mutual benefits.
